

Imagine one of your team members that works as a game programmer. This person is known to be very good at “Listen with empathy”. Describe in as many details as possible:

1. What exactly would this person do then working together with members of the team?
2. How would this person talk and have conversations with members of the team?
3. Would this person behave differently when talking to other game programmers compared to other non-technical team members?